2. PRINCIPLES OF ENGAGEMENT

How did you organize the consultation(s) to ensure the principles of multi-sectoral, multi-stakeholders, inclusive, and youth-inspired consultations?
We have conducted the consultations mainly with Japanese National commission for UNESCO which comprise of members from wide range of area such as youth, educators, researchers, industrial sector, international cooperation expert, gender equality expert, as well as governmental sector including Ministry of Finance and Ministry of Foreign Affairs, In order to gather opinion from youth, we have convened an exclusive session dedicated to youth.

3. CONSULTATION FOCUS AND OUTCOMES

What was/were the main area(s) of focus of the national consultation(s), based on the TES five thematic action tracks and the issues outlined in the Discussion Papers and the Futures of Education Briefing Notes?
Our statement mainly focuses on a "New Form of Capitalism", that will transform our society into more resilient and sustainable one in which we can address various social issues while maintaining economic growth, and "Investment in Human Resource" as its basic concept. The "New Form of Capitalism" is compatible with the Sustainable Development Goals. By strongly promoting this goal, we will make a significant contribution to the achievement of the SDGs. In the "New Form of Capitalism," we will place investment in human resources as its core with an aim to bring about the full potential of each individual and respond flexibly to changes in the work environment. Nurturing the creators of a sustainable society through ESD is also extremely important for the realization of a "New Form of Capitalism." Based on a "New Form of Capitalism", Japan will commit the realization of education that no one left behind and further improvement of the quality of education as our educational transformation. In addition, Japan will contribute to international educational reform based on "New Form of Capitalism."

What are the main outcomes regarding the four key components of the national consultation(s)?
Based on a "New Form of Capitalism", Japan will commit the realization of education that no one left behind and further improvement of the quality of education as our educational transformation. In addition, Japan will contribute to international educational reform based on "New Form of Capitalism."
